DR. GERSHAW AND HON. IAN MACKENZIE GIVE ABLE ADDRESSES

A capacity audience greeted Liberal speakers in the meeting held in the Memorial Hall Tuesday evening. In his opening remarks Mr. F. A. Louie, the chairman, invited everyone regardless of their political leanings to study the platform of the Liberal party. He spoke of the "sin of indifference" as being one of the most inexcusable and asked everyone to study the various policies offered and then make their decision.

Mr. Vaughan Kinison of Koompa carrying the provincial Liberal banner in this riding showed where the Liberals are steadily gaining ground in Canada and said it was desirable to have the provincial government in tune with the policies of the Federal administration. He showed the necessity of co-operation with the federal government and said that he stood firmly behind each plank in the Liberal platform.

Mr. C. H. Walcott of Rockyford, candidate in the Box Valley constituency welcomed familiar faces from his own riding and endorsed Mr. Hovson's platform.

Capt. Joe Shaw, candidate for East Calgary in the approaching Federal election paid glowing tribute to his old friend and colleague, Mr. Kinison, whom he had known during actual days at Golden, B. C.

He said that we were on the eve of great events and that the day is the unemployment problem. He asked how were we going to solve the mistakes made during the past five years and stated that the famous policies of the Bennett administration had made it much more difficult to get along. He suggested that we were drifting toward dictatorship and that Anglo-Saxon people could not accept this. He referred to the Ottawa marchers and said that the prime minister had been guilty of passing the buck. He showed where the national and provincial governments were carrying a load which they did not create and said that it had reached an unfortunate pass.

He dwelt on the question of young people and suggested that a national unemployment commission should be set up to devote special attention to their problems. He referred to the work being done by the Bennett administration in regard to building roads, parks and reforestation. He pointed out that the national debt was five times the work program been carried out in Canada. He ventured the prophecy that the defeat of the present government would be a national calamity since Confederation.

Mr. P. L. Hyde, Liberal candidate in West Calgary called on unexpected guests paid glowing tribute to Dr. Gershaw and his brother Scott and brother soldier the Hon. Ian Mackenzie.

Dr. Gershaw stated that the medicine that the next speaker would give was the best medicine in the world. He greeted Bennett's defeat in announcing the election date. He dealt with the national unemployment problem and quoted Sir Arthur Balfour as showing that the number of unemployed in the world was twice as great as in 1930 and that in the same period in Canada the number was three or four times larger. He showed where Mackenzie King hoped to lead the people engaged in primary industries by increasing our export markets. He said that today Canada stood seventh among the nations of the world in regard to increase of trade. He showed where a large proportion of the wheat trade had been enjoyed between Canada and the Orient and now been diverted to Australia. He referred to the depreciation of our currency and said that the management of our monetary affairs has humiliated our people. He dealt with the Price Spreads and the Stevens deal and showed how through the bias and fixed pricing acts the people had been exploited. He told where the Government had decided a "Commodity Standard" and that it had been decided to mark C.S. on packages thereby insuring the purchaser of full weight and demanded by the board. He referred to the unsatisfactory and unfair administration of relief where a family of five in some cases living on a farm receive $5 to $10 a month. He said the Liberal party desired to make a more uniform distribution of relief.

Dr. Gershaw stated it had long been a hope of his to provide pensions for the blind and also to men and women totally disabled. He said it was the right of every child to receive an adequate education to equip him for life. He thought the retiring allowances should be given to people when they reach the age of 60 and thus make savings for the young generation. He thought it would raise the standard of living.

He referred to the high salaries of officials and cited the case of Graham Towers president of the new Bank of Canada and the vice president as receiving $30,000 and $20,000 annual salaries respectively. He pointed out the folly of the construction of the new barracks in Calgary and suggested means whereby the money might have been spent to better advantage.

The Hon. Ian Mackenzie, sitting member for Vancouver was the main speaker of the evening. With indeed he has earned the reputation of "one of Canada's most brilliant speakers" and has the rare gift in his brilliant oratorical manner of being able to make every word and sentence full of facts and meaning. He has the happy faculty of being concise and yet presenting his arguments in the most forceful vital style and beautiful English. He brought greetings from his own constituency of West End and said that there was employment in the north of Strathmore for anyone born in Scotland.

He referred to the inevitable unity between the provinces of B. C. and Alberta and the fact that Vancouver is really Alberta's own seaport. He sketched the main platforms of the four parties in the Federal campaign. He referred to the Bennett regime of the past five years and showed that despite the fact that there had been 160 millions spent on relief the problem was more serious to that than it had been in 1930. He said that the first problem of the Liberal party would be to deal with relief and institute policies that would eradicate the cause of unemployment. He pointed out how the armed forces of the crown had been increased with the assistance of the people. He showed how our national debt had increased by 800 millions.

He outlined the early development of the Bank of Canada and how it had endeavored to obstruct its passage in the House. He showed where 116 millions of Canadian gold had been transferred to the Bank of Canada and due to the change in gold value this actually amounted to 180 millions. He stated that the Liberal party were pledged to see that the Bank of Canada would be transferred back to Canadian control.

HOME CURING OF PORK

In the home curing of pork, either the dry salt or the brine method may be employed, but whichever process is adopted common salt is the curing agent. Such other ingredients as sugar or salt-petre, and baking soda are also used. As a rule the old-fashioned brown sugar is preferred to the white granulated kind, as it is believed to give a slightly better flavour in the meat. A small quantity of salt-petre has a preservative effect, and gives a reddish colour to the meat. Baking soda is used principally with the brine cure.

Pork, for curing should be cut up into convenient sizes, and it is important on the one hand, that all animal heat has been cooled out of the meat, and, on the other hand, that the meat is not frozen when the curing is commenced. A cool, well ventilated cellar is a desirable place for both brine and dry curing. The curing is more easily controlled in cold or at least, cool, weather, so that thick pieces may not have a chance to spoil before the salt has penetrated. For brine curing the brine cure is preferred because there is less likelihood of failure, but full information as to the home curing of pork, the starting of meat and how to make sausage and head cheese is contained in the booklet "The Home Curing of Pork" just issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

WANT MORE WOOL GROWN IN CANADA

Though Canada's need of wool is greater than all Empire Countries except the United States, the 24 million sheep compare with 24.5 million in Great Britain, 25 million in New Zealand, 40 million in South Africa, and 100 million in Australia.

The knitting trade in Canada is a market for all the "pulled wool"—that is wool from the sheep slaughtered as lamb or mutton—produced in Canada, and it imported as well in the four years ending in 1934 more than 8 million pounds. Fleece wools, which are wools clipped from the live sheep, are used for making cloth, blanket, woven felts and certain types of yarns for knitters. Demand from these has expanded since 1931.

EASTERN ALBERTA WOOL GROWERS

The Eastern Alberta Wool Growers Association has recently completed shipment of five cars of wool from various points as follows: Wainwright 3,225 lbs., Rose Lynn, 17, 570 lbs.; Young & Co. Lanes, 25, 650 lbs.; Central District, 19,26 lbs.; Delta District, 26,500 lbs.

Wool prices are on a rising basis. This co-operative now paying an advance of six cents per pound for lambs clip, at seven cents for range, with the probability that the final payment will show a considerably higher figure. Weight, as per fleece, has been somewhat below previous years, but the greater cleanliness due to the wet spring and the smaller amount of dirt and trash in the wool, largely accounts for this.

This amount of wool, while considerable is only a fraction of the amount which would be economic to produce in this territory. Sheep are one region, fitting into the environment better than nearly any other farm product. Most of the sheep which produced the above mentioned wool...

TO THE SEA IN SHIPS

France's great Normandie, in New York Harbor, after a Blue Ribband crossing of the Atlantic, is represented as having been as "steadily as a billiard ball" on the high seas, is described by Sir Ferrel Phillips, noted journalist, as a "palatial hotel".

The Normandie is more than a hotel; she's a floating town. With a crew of more than 1,500, with accommodation for thousands of passengers, with cafes, with lawns, two large theatres, a night club, a chapel, the Normandie is in the world and at the same time is a floating town. The Normandie is not a ship at all.

For our own part, having the sea, and wanting to feel that when at sea we were still in the land, we went at sea, it is not on the Normandie, nor on any floating town like the Normandie, that we will cross the Atlantic. It is not a matter of being sentimental about the old "tall ships"; it is simply a preference, which we think quite natural for a ship that is a ship, for afloat that gives one the roll and tang of the sea.

Nor can we see much in this matter for getting across the Atlantic in the fewest possible hours. For our part, and loving an ocean voyage, the longer we are on the ocean, the better we like it, and we never expect to be so important or in such a hurry that we will be desperately vying with us to get to Liverpool from New York within five days. If that importance or haste should ever come to us, we'll resort to the cables or the telephone.

And so with the luxury. We think that on the ocean, we could get along without a cottage or a moving picture theatre, or even a night club; that we'd be perfectly content with a good comfortable cabin, good food in the dining room, good companionship and other good things in an ordinary ship's cabin. As for the deck, if they are out under the stars, give us a view of the rolling deep and the far horizons, then they are all alike.

So France may have her Normandie, and England her Queen Mary, and any other Nation any "floating city" they may wish to build. When we go down to the sea in a ship, it is going to be in a ship something that will tell of the sea and of seasonably bring us into contact with the navigators, and not taken by gigantic machines and the atmosphere of a city. If ever we crave for what the Normandie has, then we'll take a room at New York's Waldorf or even at our own Chateau Laurier. It will give us the luxury, we will be almost as much at sea—and the rest will be less.

The great luxury liners meet a modern demand with their high speed their superlative comfort, their ability to reproduce at sea the conditions with which passengers are familiar—or would like to be familiar—on land. But there still is a place for the small modern ships, the ships that are ships and not floating Chateau Lauriers. Their name is legion, and they sail in all quarters of the globe. North Americans who travel in areas far removed from their continent are surprised at the number of fine ships of smaller size than they have never previous heard of. These ships are owned by British, German, Dutch, Italian, Swedish, Danish, Japanese lines. Through a port like Cape Town, or Sydney or Singapore or Rio de Janeiro they pass in a continuous stream, and on all of them "English is spoken."

SEARLE GRAIN CO., CROP REPORT

Released July 31st.

But, drought had have taken their toll of crops in Western Canada during the past three weeks, and have lowered the percentage condition. It is down to 75 per cent of normal, as against 92 per cent reported three weeks ago and 62 per cent at this time last year, according to the Searle Grain Company's Crop Report compiled from eleven hundred and ninety-five reports from correspondents.

Manitoba has suffered most of the Three Prairie Provinces. The wheat condition is now reported at 59 per cent, whereas three weeks ago it was one hundred and two percent of normal and was 67 percent last year. There is no variation throughout the Southern and Central districts of the province which greatly lowers yields. The full extent of the loss will not be known until threshing time.

The Saskatchewan crop is now reported at 79 percent of normal, which shows a decrease from the figure of 92 percent reported July 10th. The South-eastern portion has been injured by rust and the crops in the Northern districts have suffered from drought.

Alberta like the other two provinces has had a decrease in percentage condition, dropping from 87 percent reported three weeks ago to the present condition of seventy-eight percent. The Southern districts are still suffering from lack of rainfall during late June and early July while several of the Central districts have had hail damage.

What harvesting will begin in about two weeks in Manitoba according to correspondents' indications and there is sufficient moisture supply to last until that time. In Alberta and Saskatchewan harvesting will be between three and four weeks before commencement and there are moisture reserves for ten days in these two provinces. The crop is still reported to be about ten days behind its normal progress.

FOR PRISON REFORM

—U—
Borstal System is Recommended for Canada

After studying in detail application and operation of the Borstal System in six English prisons, General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of Canadian penitentiaries, has reported to the Dominion Government his opinion that similar training and treatment of youthful offenders can and ought to be put into effect in Canada.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, called General Ormond's report in the House of Commons and declared the system may be made effective in Canada within 60 days. No legislation and no extra money would be necessary, but there would be some staff additions and extra buildings needed.

The Borstal system, favored in Canada in the speech from the throne at parliament's opening in January, "is a combination of mental, moral, physical and industrial training of a strenuous kind," he concludes under the age of 21 years.

Selected penitentiary inmates under the age of 21 would be housed separately and made the subject of this training with a view to correcting criminal instincts and preparing the youth for more useful effort on discharge.

NEED FOR INVESTIGATION

After serving fourteen years at the penitentiary at Kingston, Norman (Ike) Ryan was released on parole a few days ago and the public was surprised to learn that, on his release he was handed a pile of letters and other mail that had been coming for him since 1921.

Some of the letters were from his wife, which he did not get and therefore did not answer. And there were a number of Christmas gifts. Why was all this mail held back from Ryan? A short time ago another prisoner at the same penitentiary was being granted his discharge was given a letter telling of the death of his mother two years ago. How much mail of other prisoners in the penitentiaries is being held back for no sufficient reason? The human bonds of affection and goodwill between a prisoner and his relatives and friends should help to keep him from brooding and from being embittered by prison life. It is said that all letters for prisoners are now read by a clerk censor and delivered to them if there is nothing objectionable in them. But what about the accumulation of old letters that have apparently been held back the past, as revealed in several cases of late.

This is just one more thing, added

TOWN COUNCIL

The meeting of the Town Council was called for 7 o'clock Tuesday evening to give the members an opportunity to go later to the Police meeting to be addressed chiefly by P. W. Gershaw and Hon. Ian McLean. Mayor Gershaw presided and Councilmen Hughes and Keeling were absent.

The auditor's report was read by Secretary Wears for the first quarter. The report stated the books were kept in good order. The report was adopted as read.

A desk telephone will be installed in the Secretary-Treasurer's office. Complaints are a matter of course, which had destroyed several gardens and a few dogs were in the way and the owners in each case given warning before further action would be taken.

A suggestion that Fire Brigade members be paid 50¢ per member for Fire Practice to comply with the Workmen's Compensation Board. Considerable discussion resulted and the matter was further considered. Questions re school, public works, etc. received attention.

The secretary reported all dog taxes paid except one over which there was some misunderstanding. It was resolved that a letter of sympathy be sent to the relatives of the late Mr. Clarke of Rockyford. A number of bills were passed after which adjournment took place.

The leader of the Reconstruction party was responsible for high tariffs as he had been formerly minister of Trade and Commerce.

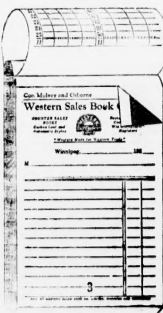

He said that the Liberal Party would discuss changes in the I. N. A. Act particularly in regard to taxation provisions; there would be a commission formed to deal with unemployment; there would have to be a commission of investigation to deal with the monetary system and that it was imperative to have national unity. He also pointed out under the existing and social dividends were inevitable in Canada and that the problem should be approached with knowledge, sympathy and understanding.

The speaker scored Mr. Woodsworth for having voted in favor of the Central Bank. He said that the Liberals held no brief for a party of reaction and stated the Liberal Party chose a middle course. He said that the Liberal party was faced with the greatest opportunity of its career and that Liberty and Democracy are soon to be tested in Canada.
